Dear Admissions Committee of the Economics Department at Princeton University,

Greetings!

I am Zejiang Wang. Driven by a deep passion for FINANCE and a profound admiration for Princeton University's academic reputation, I am submitting my application to your graduate program in Economics.

Academically, I have consistently followed cutting-edge research in FINANCE, particularly tracking publications in top-tier journals such as Journal of Finance, Journal of Financial Economics, Review of Financial Studies. These publications have not only deepened my understanding of core FINANCE theories but also inspired my exploration of specific issues like "Impact of AI on Labor Markets." This has solidified my resolve to pursue advanced studies at your institution and further develop related research.

Regarding my career path, I aim to specialize in FINANCE during graduate studies and pursue quant research (e.g., research at academic institutions, quantitative analysis in financial institutions, or policy research in government economic departments) after graduation. Princeton University's faculty expertise and research resources in FINANCE will provide crucial support for achieving this goal.

Regarding skill sets, I am proficient in SQL, Python, Math, C++ and other tools, enabling me to independently complete tasks such as data cleaning, statistical modeling, and empirical analysis for academic papers. These competencies will facilitate my swift adaptation to the pace of graduate-level study and research.

Thank you for taking the time to review my application. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss this further with you!
